

IU School of Law–Indianapolis Summer Abroad Program Cancellation Policy

Immediately upon acceptance into an abroad program, the student shall pay a deposit of $300 in order to hold his/her place in the program. This deposit is to cover the administrative costs of processing the student's application and will not be refunded under any circumstances unless the program is cancelled. The deposit will be applied toward the full program fee and is not in addition to that fee.

The balance of the full program fee will be due no later than May 1, forty-five days before the first day of class in the program, or immediately upon acceptance into the program, whichever of these three dates comes last. Failure to pay the full program fee when due will cause the student to lose his/her place in the program until such time as the full program fee is paid (including a finance charge assessed at 18% per annum from the date the payment was due), assuming that the program has not by then reached capacity. Once paid, the program fee will be nonrefundable, with the exception that a refund of the program fee (excluding the deposit) will be allowed in extraordinary circumstances that make it unduly burdensome for the student to attend the program.

A student who is accepted into an abroad program and pays his/her deposit, but who subsequently fails to pay the full program fee will ordinarily still owe and be billed in full for the program fee. If such a student is excused from paying the program fee because extraordinary circumstances made it unduly burdensome for the student to attend the program, that student will nonetheless still owe and will be billed in full for any actual costs incurred by the IU School of Law–Indianapolis on the student's behalf related to travel, housing, board, or other activities in which the school anticipated that the student would participate. The deposit will not be applied to cover such expenses.

Once a student attends any class in the program, the program fee will not be refunded under any circumstances.

Notwithstanding the above, if the IU School of Law–Indianapolis cancels a program because of insufficient student response or for any other reason, all amounts paid will be refunded.